Eine

(English)
c. 1982
Painting

Eine's work likes to live between street art and graffiti, but not of writing letters or art on a wall. The artist explores the different reactions of typography and systems used through the graphic. Eine plays with the ways in which, when accepted and recognized, these symbols can mean one thing, another or nothing at all, to someone depending on the individual person → while appropriating each letter as a unique design in itself.

BANKSY in Bristol:

Banksy painted the Grim Reaper onto the ship and nightclub venue Thekla around 2003, but exposure to the elements was causing deterioration, thus in 2014 the owners removed it and arranged to loan it on a long term basis to M Shed, a municipal museum devoted to local history, particularly regarding slave trade.
